Choosing a hijab style for an engagement or wedding

A clean fold keeps attention on the lines of a dress. Softer folds fall more loosely around the cheeks. For a wedding, the place where your veil will sit matters too.

Look at the neckline

Hold the scarf against the dress in daylight. If there's lace or embroidery around the neck, try a drape that keeps that detail visible.

Choose where the long end falls

If you want one end over your shoulder, hold your bouquet when you try the scarf. See whether the fabric follows your arm or hides embroidery you would like to show in photographs.
